WVU Student Employment Handbook

Introduction

Title 133 Procedural Rule of the Higher Education Policy Commission Series 8, Personal Administration Section 2.1.5 and the University define a student employee as an employee who is enrolled at the institution as a student and whose primary purpose for being at the institution is to obtain an education. A Student employee is not eligible for benefits and is not covered by the University's classification program in Board of Governors Rule 3.3 – Classification and Compensation.

Many students use student employment to offset institutional costs associated with their financial need while in college. Overall, it has been shown that working as a student has an overall positive impact on the college experience and student success.

West Virginia University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Institution. The University does not discriminate based on race, sex, age, disability, veteran status, religion, sexual orientation, color, or national origin in the administration of any of its educational programs, activities, or with respect to admission or employment. Faculty, staff, students, and applicants are protected from retaliation for filing complaints or assisting in an investigation under the University's Equal Opportunity Policy/Affirmative Action Plan. Inquiries regarding the University's non-discrimination statement may be directed to the Division of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion at West Virginia University

Supervisor Resources

Is a Student Employee Right for your Position?

- Student employees can be a valuable member of your unit, but because student employees are students first and employees second, they may not be right for every position.
- A student employee is not permitted to use work responsibilities as an excuse to miss class assignments, show up late to class, or miss class entirely. If you are considering hiring a student employee, please keep this in mind.

- Consider whether the operational needs of your department could support the student employee having to take time off or leave a few minutes early due to these educational responsibilities.
- Student employees should not be hired in lieu of a full-time employee.
- Be mindful that many student employees will have limited workplace experience and try to use their employment as part of the overall learning experience at the University.

How to Post a Student Employee Position

- Supervisors are required to post their student employment opportunity in Handshake (Posting GA positions is optional). Handshake does not require an account to do so. Simply fill out the Student Employment Job Posting Request Form. Supervisors have the option to post their position for Federal Work Study students only, post the position as a regular student employment position or both and accept applications from both pools of students.
 - You can find more information about Federal Work Study here: Federal Work-Study | Student Financial Services
 - You can find more information about Graduate Assistantships here: Graduate Assistantships | Graduate Education and Life
- Once your job is posted to Handshake, the recipient of applications will receive an email each time a student applies with the required documents attached and/or the supervisor can receive an email summary of all applicants once the job expires. Typically, On & Off-Campus positions require a resume, and the student's work availability or class schedule.

How to Hire a Student Employee

As the supervisor, you will review prospective applicants and reach out to candidates directly to set up an in-person or phone interview.

To hire a student employee, you will need to:

1. Complete the short WVU Supervisor Assessment. You should receive a onetime passing score of 80%.

2. Submit a Student and Other NBE New Hire Form which goes to Shared Services. On each page of the form, scroll down to click next. To hire a Federal Work Study student, complete the Federal Work Study New Hire Form. For more information on the process to onboard a Student employee, please read the Shared Services article, Processing Students for Payroll.
3. Shared Services will then instruct the student to process for payroll if they're not already an employee. For more information on student processing and onboarding, go to Employee Processing.
4. Once the student has processed for payroll, the supervisor will receive an onboarding email from Shared Services that includes the earliest potential date that the student can start working.
5. You MUST receive the onboarding email before the student can begin working. Once you have received the official onboarding email, work with the student to determine their first day of work and their schedule for the semester. Remember, their first day of work must be on or after the official "Start Date" from the onboarding email.
6. At the end of each semester, supervisors should then evaluate their Student employee. A sample evaluation can be found here: Student employee Evaluation Form Sample.

What is Federal Work-Study?

Federal Work-Study, also referred to as FWS, is one of the major federal student financial aid programs authorized under Title IV of the Higher Education Act. It is designed to provide part-time employment to students who have established financial need according to federal guidelines. The federal government pays a percentage of the student's salary; the University or off-campus employer pays the remainder. The primary goal of the Federal Work-Study Program is to provide students with the opportunity to gain valuable work experience and offset some of their educational costs.

The work a student performs must be in the public interest either on-campus or off-campus with Community Partners job responsibilities cannot promote religious doctrine or involve political lobbying, and the student may not replace or fill a permanent staff position. FWS jobs range from basic service positions to highly technical lab or computer positions. Many students seek a position related to their career objective. Others seek positions that offer skill development. In either case, the FWS Program is intended to provide a balance between the interests of the student and the needs of the hiring department or agency.

Who Is Eligible for Work-Study?

To be eligible for FWS funds, a student must:

- Be determined eligible and be awarded FWS allocation
- Students must complete the application process by filing a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and meet the March 1 priority filing deadline
- Complete a FAFSA each year
- Be a regularly admitted student
- Be a US citizen, US National, or Permanent US Resident
- Be enrolled for each semester he/she is employed. Exceptions granted for not enrolled students or students enrolled half-time or less-than half-time when they are working in the summer
- Maintain Satisfactory Academic Progress (SAP) for financial aid eligibility; for more information, please visit Satisfactory Academic Progress.
- Not owe a repayment to any Title IV grant program and not be in default on any Title IV loans received at any school

Community Partner/Community Service Contracts

Community Partner/Community Service employers must sign a contract with WVU to employ Federal Work-Study students. Contracts must be renewed annually. Community Partner contracts will be sent to existing supervisors during the summer semester. A link to a copy of the Community Partner Contract can also be found on our Supervisor Resources webpage.

Required Matching Costs

The required matches by the department or agency are:

- On-Campus Department or Community Partner for the academic year
 - Department or agency pays 0% and FWS program pays 75% of earned wages
 - University Central Administration pays the required 25% match
- Full-Time Summer FWS On-Campus Department or Community Partner
 - Department or agency pays 10% and FWS program pays 75% of earned wages and University Central Administration pays the required 15% match
 - Student Financial Services reserves the right to waive the required match fee

How to Manage a Student Employee

As a supervisor of a student employee, it is important to understand that ultimately the student employee should determine how many hours per week they feel comfortable working and report that to you. Student employees are students first, and it is important they consider how much time they will need to dedicate to their studies. Student employees are advised not to allow their work schedule to negatively impact their academic success.

Payment and Recording Time

Student employees are paid every other Friday. The University is required by law to make deductions from paychecks for federal and state income taxes, and Social Security. Failure to log in correctly or the falsification of time records can result in disciplinary action up to and including termination and repayment of funds for time not worked.

Clocking In and Out

For On-Campus positions, student employees will clock in and out via computer or assigned time clock. For more information, refer to the WVU Shared Services article on how to record time in Applaud.

Hiring Students Under the Age of 18

You are permitted to hire a Student employee under the age of 18 and they may work on campus, but additional documents must be completed at the Division of Human Resources/Talent Strategy. You, as the hiring supervisor, must initiate completing these forms. To request approval, please fill out the Hiring of Minors Request Form BEFORE any offer of employment is made.

Performance Management

Managing a student employee's performance is an important part of a supervisor's responsibilities. Your response to a student employee either violating workplace rules or performing below expectations should depend on the severity of the infraction. Additionally, workplace rules and expectations should be clearly communicated to the student employee at the commencement of their employment.

When a student employee is not meeting expected and previously communicated performance standards, supervisors are encouraged to implement a process called progressive discipline. Progressive discipline is meant to let a student employee know that there is a performance problem or that an opportunity for improvement exists. The process features increasingly formal efforts to provide feedback to the student employee to correct the problem. These efforts can range from verbal conversations and written warnings to termination. The goal of progressive discipline is not to punish an employee, but rather to improve employee performance and assist employees in overcoming workplace difficulties. Progressive discipline is most successful when it assists an individual to become an effectively performing member of the organization. Common issues requiring performance management and disciplinary action include, but are not limited to, unexcused tardiness, inappropriate behavior, sleeping, absenteeism, or failure to properly perform assigned duties and tasks. If you are considering severe disciplinary action such as termination, please contact Shared Services at sharedservices@mail.wvu.edu prior to doing so.

If you suspect a student employee is recording time fraudulently, you should immediately contact Shared Services and the Office of Student Conduct to discuss potential disciplinary action.

Steps to Hire and Manage FWS Students for Community Partners

There are different steps to hire FWS students – depending on if you are a WVU department (i.e., an “on-campus” employer) or a Community Partner (nonprofit, 501(c)(3) organization).

Step One: Submit a Community Partner Agreement

New Community Partners – A Community Partner Agreement between your organization and West Virginia University will need to be completed before any hiring.

Returning Community Partners – A Community Partner Agreement will need to be completed each year before hiring; contracts for returning Community Partners will be sent out before the next academic year begins.

Step Two: Complete Supervisory Training

Supervisor training must be completed before supervisors are able to hire new workers.

For more information, refer to our Supervisor Resources webpage.

Step Three: Submit a Job Request Form for a New Position

Any positions previously posted in the Handshake job search database from the prior academic year are automatically re-posted unless the supervisor indicates they do not want them posted.

A Job Request Form (available on our FWS Supervisor Forms webpage or by following this link to the Student Employment Job Posting Request Form, must be submitted for each position. If you are hiring more than one student for the same position, only one form is necessary.

- o The duties listed on the form should describe the position, not the ideal candidate to fill the position.

- o Student Financial Services staff will review the FWS Job Request Form and enter the position information into Handshake. Once position information is entered into Handshake, a position number will automatically be assigned to your position.

Step Four: Interview and Select Prospective FWS Employees

Students apply for open positions through Handshake. If a student applies for your position, you will receive an email with the student's application.

The following information will be attached to the email:

- o Student's resume
- o Work availability and/or class schedule
- o Any other information you require for your position

Once you have reviewed the student's application email, you may:

- o Contact student to set up an in personal interview
- o Contact student to conduct a phone interview
- o Hire directly from the information contained within the student's application

Students may apply for more than one position at a time. However, the first supervisor to submit a Federal Work-Study Employee Requisition Form to hire a student will be the supervisor that student is assigned to. Therefore, it is important to review the job referral emails and select your desired employees in a timely manner.

Step Five: Hire Your Selected FWS Employee

To hire a student, submit the Federal Work-Study Hire Form

Your selection will be reviewed by Student Financial Services staff to make sure that the student is eligible for work-study and that no other department/agency has already hired the student.

Step Six: Confirmation from Shared Services that the Student Can Begin Work

If another department/agency has already hired the student you requested, you will be notified that the student was already selected for another position.

If no other department/agency has hired the student but the student has not processed for payroll, you and the student will receive an email confirming the assignment and next steps the student must take for payroll.

Once the student has processed for payroll, you will receive an onboarding email from Shared Services that includes the student's start date and employee information.

- o You MUST receive the onboarding email before the student can begin working. At no time should a student begin working in a Federal Work-Study job assignment unless the onboarding email from Shared Services containing the start date and employee information has been received. This communication will resemble the sample email below:

Please print a copy of the on-boarding information listed below for your employee. If your employee has not already activated their account, please have them go to <https://login.wvu.edu> on or after the access start date provided below and follow the instructions to claim their account and create a password.

Employees must immediately enroll in two-factor authentication. After creating their password, they should return to the main screen at <https://login.wvu.edu>, click My Login and follow the instructions. They should be ready to install the Duo Mobile app on a smartphone.

Employee Number-----123456789

Employee Name ----- Man, Iron

WVUID ----- 826124748

Username-----m40001

Email Address ----- iron.man@mix.wvu.edu

Assignment Number-----8675309

Employee Start Date ----- 18-MAR-

2020 Position Title Office

The department/agency will be required to pay any earnings for any student placed on FWS funding who otherwise was not eligible for FWS.

Step Seven: Set a Start Date and Schedule with the Student

Once you have received the official onboarding email, work with the student to determine their first day of work and their schedule for the semester.

Remember, their first day of work must be on or after the official “Start Date” from the onboarding email.

Step Eight: Introduce the Student to the Workplace

Your student may arrive with little or no work experience. It will benefit both you and the student to take the time to introduce the student to the different aspects of the workplace.

Describe both the big picture goals and daily activities of your department.

Discuss the student's duties, responsibilities, and how they are expected to interact with other members of the department. Consider having the student sign a Student employee Agreement (click here to download a sample work-study agreement).

If a student has access to confidential records in their position, they must be informed/trained on FERPA, HIPAA and any other WVU privacy policies. The student must also sign any applicable confidentiality statements.

Explain to the student how they should record their time worked. Do not permit students to enter time for other students.

Explain that payment will only be rendered for hours worked; students will not be paid for studying or completing classwork.

Outline your expectations of the student's work. Agree on a specific work schedule and on procedures for reporting absences or delays.

If applicable, assign a workstation, show the student where to find work materials, and where to secure personal belongings.

Step Nine: Monitor Time Worked and Federal Work-Study Award Usage

You must monitor the hours students work to ensure they:

- o Do not go over the hours they are permitted to work per week (no more than 28 hours unless during the times they are permitted to work up to 40 hours).
- o Have clocked out for at least half an hour's break if they work six or more hours in a day.

- o Do not earn more than their Federal Work-Study award allows (departments/agencies will be required to pay any earnings paid that go over the student's work-study allotment).

A spreadsheet to track hours worked, work-study funds used, and remaining work-study allotment can be found on our Managing an FWS Position webpage.

For more information on permissible work hours – including days when students are not permitted to work – see the Monitoring Earnings, Hours and Revisions section.

Step Ten: Community Members Must Submit Timecards to Federal Work-Study Administrator Weekly

A timecard template spreadsheet can be found on our Managing an FWS Position webpage. Community Partner supervisors are required to use this spreadsheet to submit timecards.

Timecards must be submitted weekly by noon on Friday.

Employment Policies

On-Campus Student employee Permissible Work Hours

On-Campus Student employees will work with their supervisor to establish a feasible work schedule. Student employees can work from one up to 28 hours per week on a semesterly basis throughout the fall and spring semesters. There are some exceptions where Student employees can work up to 40 hours per week. Student days off, such as spring break, are days the University itself is not officially closed for a University holiday. Therefore, student employees can work full-time during spring break if needed.

As a supervisor of a student employee, it is important to understand that ultimately the student employee should determine how many hours per week they feel comfortable working and report that to you. Student employees are students first, and it is important they consider how much time they will need to dedicate to their studies. Student employees are advised not to allow their work schedule to negatively impact their academic success.

Regardless of the number of hours worked, student employees are not considered benefit eligible by the University, and thus are not entitled to the University's benefit offerings including, but not limited to, health insurance, life insurance, and retirement plans. Student employees are at-will employees and may resign their position at any time. The University requests that student employees provide at least two weeks' notice prior to the student employee's final date of employment.

Additional Employment

When a student holds more than one University job at a time, the total hours worked across all hourly student positions cannot exceed the relevant hour limit of 28 hours per week during the spring and fall semesters while enrolled in classes and cannot exceed 40 hours per week during breaks and summer in which the student is not enrolled in classes.

Off-Campus Student employee Permissible Work Hours

For off-campus positions, students can hold multiple jobs throughout the year. There is no limit to the number of hours worked each week, but employers are discouraged from having students work full time during the academic year.

One Federal Work-Study Assignment Rule

Students may only be employed in one FWS position at any given time. Students may choose to change positions. However, the student should be discouraged from making more than one position change during the academic year. Student Financial Services may limit the number of position-changes a student may pursue.

International Students

Specific restrictions imposed by federal law apply to international student employees on F-1 and J-1 visas. They must be continuing students in good standing with the University, and federal regulations have hour limits per week for on-campus work while school is in session. The limit is usually 20 hours per week, but students suffering emergent circumstances that affect their source of support may request approval from WVU's International Students & Scholar's Services (ISSS) to work additional hours.

Approval from ISSS is required before international students may begin working additional hours. International students are permitted to work 40 hours per week on-campus during those periods when school is not in session or during the annual break period, regardless of the position type. As a supervisor, you must be conscious of how many hours student employees on an F-1 or J-1 visa are working and ensure they are not exceeding their applicable limits. For questions regarding the employment of international students, contact the WVU Office of International Students & Scholars Services.

Holidays and University Closures

Student employees may be required to work during University holidays (found on the Holiday Schedule) or when the University is closed. You must make clear in the job posting that the position may include a request to work on University holidays, and you may not take disciplinary action against a Student employee for refusing to do so if they provide you with two weeks' notice prior to the holiday that they are not available to work. University closures include emergency closures such as snow days when classes are canceled and University employees (except for emergency/essential personnel) are told not to report to work.

Winter Intersession and Summer Employment

Student employees that are enrolled in Winter Intersession classes must adhere to the 28-hour work limit. Student employees that are not enrolled in Winter Intersession classes may work up to 40 hours a week if they will be returning for the spring semester.

If the student is enrolled in the upcoming Fall semester, they can be a student employee in the summer without being enrolled in summer classes. Students enrolled in six or more credit hours during the summer must adhere to working 28 hours. If less than six credit hours, students can work full-time.

In the summer, full-time student employees who are not enrolled or are enrolled half time or less (three credits or less for graduate students, 6 credits or less for undergraduate students in the summer semester only) can work up to 40 hours per week. If a student is enrolled half-time or less this may impact tax withholdings. For more information on IRS student worker tax withholding guidelines, see the IRS Student FICA website. Please note that work-study funding is limited, so there may not be FWS funding available for the summer semester.

Last Day of Employment

The last day of employment during the academic year is the last day of spring finals. Please visit the Academic Calendar or the University's current academic calendar.

There are some exceptions for winter break and winter intersession. See the Permissible Work Hours and Winter Intersession sections above for more information.

Workday Breaks

When working a consecutive four-hour period, student employees must receive a 15-minute break with pay. If they are working a six to eight-hour period, student employees are entitled to two 15-minute breaks with pay and no less than a 30-minute lunch break without pay. Paid breaks may not be taken at the beginning or end of the work period and are not cumulative. Breaks should also be taken at times when the student employee's absence will not place an undue burden on the department.

To Release or Terminate a Student Employee

Please email Shared Services at sharedservices@mail.wvu.edu and provide the students' name and effective end date. Here are reasons to release or terminate a student employee:

If a student is no longer working for you or your department.

Grounds for termination can include excessive tardiness, inappropriate behavior, sleeping on the job, absenteeism, or failure to properly perform assigned duties and tasks.

If a student is recording time fraudulently, the student should be immediately terminated and referred to the Office of Student Conduct for further disciplinary action.

If a student graduates and you want to hire them as a Mountaineer Temp. For more information, please visit our Supervisor Resources webpage.

Exceeding FWS Award Amounts

A FWS student cannot earn more than their initial FWS allocation. Supervisors and students are notified of the FWS award offer at the time of hiring.

It is the student's and the supervisor's responsibility to maintain a record of the student's total gross earnings. The student must stop working once his/her full allotment has been earned. Any earnings above the student's eligible award amount will result in a charge to the employing department/agency. If a student has additional eligibility for Federal Work-Study funds and if funds are available, the award may be increased. For questions, contact the WVU Hub.

Supervisors must keep a sign in sheet as a backup for timecard records. A timesheet example is available on our Managing an FWS Position webpage.

To assist supervisors with monitoring hours, we have created an earnings worksheet which can also be found on our Managing a FWS Position webpage.

Financial Aid Awards and FWS Revisions

A student's work-study allotment may be revised at any time during the academic year to compensate for other types of aid or a change in aid eligibility. Student Financial Services will issue a revised award notification to the student and send a notice to his/her supervisor regarding the change. If current earnings exceed the student's current earnings, any overages are the responsibility of the department/agency.

Workplace Standards

Attendance and Timelines

A Student employee's contribution is important to the successful operation of the University. Therefore, they are expected to arrive and be ready to start work at the time you have assigned to them. Attendance is very important. With that said, because

Student employees are students first, if they must leave work earlier than the assigned time, it is recommended that you provide flexibility and approve these requests if feasible so long as they are made in advance.

Procedures for Reporting Absences

If for any reason a student employee is absent for a scheduled shift, and there was no proper notice given you or another supervisor, disciplinary action may be taken. As a student employee, it is their responsibility to inform you or another supervisor of their delay or absence before any scheduled start time. Supervisors have the right to enact and enforce appropriate punishment for not meeting their written guidelines in terms of lateness and/or absence from work that is not approved before the scheduled shift.

Drug-Free Workplace

All employees of West Virginia University, including faculty classified and non-classified staff, administrators, and student employees, must comply with the Drug-Free Workplace Act of 1988 (Public Law 100-690 Title V, Subtitle D, 41 U.S.C. 701 et. Seq.)

You must contact Shared Services immediately once you become aware of this information. Student employees are required to provide this notice to a supervisor whether the charge is the result of an incident that took place inside or outside the workplace.

Background Checks

Background checks may be required by various on-campus departments before final employment.

Other Certifications

Other job certifications and training may be required specifically for the job. They may include (but are not limited to): Food Handling, Cash Handling, Lifeguard, First Aid, CPR, HIPAA, and FERPA.

Student Employee Rights and Responsibilities

Student employees are required to behave in a civil, professional manner, to treat others with respect; to comply with state and federal laws and regulations related to individual rights, business operations, and procedures, health and safety, conflict of interest, and to comply with University regulations, rules, and policies and procedures. Student employees are entitled to be treated with respect and dignity by supervisors and other employees.

Injuries

Every student employee is covered during working hours by Worker's Compensation for work-related injury/illness. It is imperative that the employee immediately report any job-related accident or illness to his/her supervisor. If a student employee is injured while on the job, the student and supervisor should contact WVU Human Resources at 304-293- 5700. If the student does not seek medical treatment, they cannot do a Worker's Compensation claim. All injuries, no matter how trivial, should be reported immediately. Questions regarding Worker's Compensation should be directed to WVU Human Resources.

Misuse of Computing and Telecommunications Resources

Student employees should be instructed as to the appropriate use of the following:

- WVU campus network

As the supervisor, it is your responsibility to ensure that the student employee understands the general workplace procedures and schedule and is trained to complete their specific assignment.

University programs, personnel, time, titles, and property, including equipment, systems, vehicles, information, supplies, and office space, are to be used in conducting authorized business of the University. Use of such for personal benefit or gain may be grounds for disciplinary action. Student employees are responsible for securing the University building, office, room, equipment, and other keys assigned to them for work-related reasons. When employment ends, students are expected to return any keys they may have been issued.

Work Ethics and Confidential Information

While at work, student employees may learn confidential information about business, other students, parents of students, or other university personnel. This information is strictly confidential and should not be discussed with others except within the scope of carrying out their University duties. You should ensure student employees are aware of this obligation, and you may ask a student employee to sign a confidentiality agreement if the information is particularly sensitive.
